Winter Class Delivery:

All classes will continue with remote delivery for the winter term. However, both universities have agreed, in principle, that the off-campus sites can hold more in person meetings than classes at the main campuses in Saskatoon and Regina. We do not have confirmation about what this will look like at this time.

We hope to have more frequent face to face seminars and tutorials at our Yorkton location. We will continue to offer video conference of these events for all students who are unable, or uncomfortable with, being in the classroom with other students. The course syllabus, given to you by the instructor, will detail exactly how the class will be delivered. All face to face meetings will be subject to local conditions and the advice of the Public Health Office. When planning your course schedule bear in mind that there could be face to face or video conference meetings at the scheduled times.

Please note: You are able to register in any classes for which you have the prerequisites at either university but please consider registering in Parkland College designated classes. These classes tend to be much smaller in size and may have additional tutorials or seminars. The designated Parkland College classes are the only classes for which the college receives revenue to maintain the classes here and provide additional supports such as advisors and tutorials.

If you need a common visiting student form check out the University at Parkland College page on the Current Students tab of the college website. <https://parklandcollege.sk.ca/current/universityatparkland.html>
